In this first unit, students will explore the question: “Why do people seek the power of reading?” Through the study of literature, literary nonfiction, and informational articles from around the world, and in their own backyards, students will experience the extraordinary lengths to which some people go in order to access the power and privilege of reading. Students will learn about and practice how to close read and answer text-dependent questions. They also will determine the criteria for a good conversation and practice discussing texts with their peers. Throughout this unit, teachers also will conduct a variety of reading assessments on individual students, based on district or school priorities. (This will lay the foundation for students getting to know their own reading powers during Unit 2.) As the mid-unit assessment, teachers will gauge students’ ability to collaborate with their peers. Students will begin to build their ability to write an informative paragraph using a simple “accordion” structure to help them understand how to develop a topic with facts, definitions, and details. In the end of unit assessment, students will demonstrate their ability to organize and record notes about “reading superheroes” throughout the world.

Guiding Questions And Big Ideas

- What is the power of reading and education?
- How does where people live in the world affect how they access reading and books?
- People overcome great challenges in order to access learning and books.
- Readers can learn about different cultures (people and places) through a variety of texts.

Mid-Unit 1 Assessment	Collaborative Discussion Skills This assessment centers on NYSP12 ELA CCLS SL.3.1b and c. Three times in this unit, students will engage in small group discussions after reading texts closely. During these discussions, the teacher will use a simple Conversation Criteria checklist to monitor and record students' mastery of discussion skills. Since the assessment is about the students' ability to speak in complete sentences and use class norms, teachers may choose to track students' use of these criteria over the course of multiple lessons. Lesson 6 includes specific time to pull any students for whom teachers do not already have ample assessment evidence.
End of Unit 1 Assessment	Close Reading and Powerful Note-Taking on My Own This on-demand assessment centers on NYSP12 ELA CCLS RL.3.2, RL.3.3, W.3.8, and L.3.4. Students will read independently excerpts from The Librarian of Basra or another text of the teacher's choosing at the appropriate Lexile range. Students will follow the same close reading routine they have been practicing throughout the unit: reading to get to know the text, reading to determine the central message and to identify unfamiliar vocabulary, reading to take notes about how key details help to convey the central message or lesson of the text, and reading to answer text-dependent questions.

Content Connections
This module is designed to address English Language Arts standards and to be taught during the literacy block of the school day. However, the module intentionally incorporates Social Studies and Science content taught during other parts of the day. These intentional connections are described below.

+ This unit includes two texts, written by Jeannette Winter, that address the importance of literacy and books even during times of war. The leading children publishing and teaching resource web sites unanimously agree that these texts are appropriate and effective for 3rd-grade children. Both texts include some reference to violence. In lessons, time is set aside to discuss with students that in some places in the world, there are wars that are scary. Use this discussion as an opportunity to build students' idealism, help them articulate it, describe what it means to act bravely, and notice how these real people pursue the power of reading. See also the Letter to Families (in Lesson 6); consider how you might adapt your presentation of this to the needs of your community and your classroom culture.
